The special copyrighted despatch from "The World" states that renewed efforts are being made by Cornelius Vanderbilt and others of the famlius Vanderbilt and others of the family to hush up the scandal, and other intimate friends are vigorously seconding them. It is now considered probable that at least a formal reconciliation will be effected, for the publicity given the matter has caused all parties the greatest concern and the great scandal of a divorce suit is mutually dreaded. While there has been no communication between the aggrieved principals, unless Chauncey Depew, who was called to Paris a few days ago to consult with Mr. Vanderbilt on the death of President Newell, of the Lake Shore road, may have stopped over at Schwalbach on his way from Paris to Honiburg.

BABY M'KEE'S FIRST PLAY.

He and Little Mary Lodge Go with Grandpa to See "Shenandonh." There was much childish prattle in oom 171 of the Fifth Avenue Hotel last night. This is the sitting-room of the suit occupied by ex-President Harrison, his daughter, Mrs. McKee, and his daughter's children, Baby McKee and tiny Miss Mary Lodge McKee. The children saw the big parade yesterday and went to a theatre for the first time in their lives, so they had a great deal to talk about, of course. Gen. Harrison felt pleased to see them so de- WANTED TO SEE NEW YORK lighted. He sat in one corner of the room pretending to read his paper, but really looking over its top and listening to every word. Mrs. McKee sat quietly in the other corner with hands and was softly smiling. In the third corner Mary Lodge McKee, a wee black and was solly smiling. In the third corner Mary Lodge McKee, a wee black-haired and black-eyed girl in a fiery-red dress, sat in semi-dignity in a big blue is velvet easy chair, holding on to each arm, and her eyes and ears wide open while Baby McKee had the floor. He is how seven years old and wears knicker-bockers.

It is strange that a man who is so frigid in all other ways has such a warm fondness for children. Gen. Harrison could be happy forever in Babyland. He could pass his life in a nursery and have that life filled with delight right along. Yet when he gives you his hand you feel that you are grasping a bunch of icicles and in his presence you try to think whether the moths have gotten into your Winter coat and wonder where you hung up your ear-muffs in the early days of last Spring. The General has aged very much since the campaign of 1888. He is very white in hair and beard and wears the placid look of a man who would like to sit on his front stoop and let the years giliby as they may.

Col. Jay is now in Paris, and negotiations looking to a settlement will probably be at once begun.

The trouble between Mr. and Mrs. Yanderbilt culminated in an open rupture when Mrs. Vanderbilt is alleged to asve put such a public insult upon her husband and his friends of the yachting sarty that Valiant's trip was brought to a sudden close, and a temporary separation, at least, was agreed upon.

Mr. Vanderbilt's most intimate friends declare that his very open relations with the girl Nellie Neustraetter were so publicly paraded solely with the intention of forcing Mrs. Vanderbilt to action. These friends say that it was not an instance of infatuation for the girl Mr. Vanderbilt's conduct hitherto being most exemplary.
